come around after me; I'm a figure-head.

"The Mayor declared for a gas holder for the West End on March 20th, when he had signed the budget with the appropriation for this mirpose on March 20th, I don't know whether he knew it was there or not, but I am telling you a fact.

"If you elect me to the office of mayor and at the end of four years I have made a consummate failure, you may escort me to Manchester with a band of music and I promise you never to return." "Good people," he said in conclusion, "think of me when you get to the polls, and if you will elect me I will hold your trust as sacred to my bosom and I pledge ray untiring efforts to make your city one of the most progressive and prosperous within the confines of this country."

Anderson Follows.

Anderson Follows.

Colonel Anderson followed Mr. Hicks and was well received.

He started out by expressing his sincere sympathies for His Honer, the Mayor, in his distress, owing to the illness of an aged father, and after dashing a few good-natured words at Mr. Hicks, he at once took up his course in the recent street railway strike and read in a most impressive manner a carefully prepared impressive manner a carefully prepared in every available space in the hali.

He said when Mayor Taylor called for troops he obeyed the call, as he was bound to do under his oath of effice.

Proceeding, he said: "I here and now declare before 60d and man that nothing inspired a single act of mine except a desire and a determination to do my whole duty, without fear and without favor. Had any person, bowever high, suggested that I agree to entice innocent people into an appearance of guilt in order to break the strike by charging them with a helmous crime and arresting or killing them, I should have kicked him out of my office if possible and denounced him as an unprincipled scoundirel to the whole city."

Frank Statement.

Colonel Anderson gave a history of the Fulton riot and told of his connection with it in a fearless and plausible manner. He asked:

"What possible inducement could I have had to make me agree to so terrible and distantly a crime? There must be a motive for such an act. Does any one think money could pay me to shoot men I knew to be innocent or to send them to the penitentiary? Would I do it to break the strike? What is money to forever carrying the consciousness of murder and hired villainy, or what had I to gain by breaking the strike any more than any other citizen?

Further on he said: "In conclusion fellow-citizens, I can look into your faces with a pure heart and a clean conscience in this matter. I say to you that I did the best I could with a trying and a difficult task. Whatever mistakes may have been made were such as I did not foresee and did not know how to avoid."

The City's Needs.

When Colonel Anderson completed the reading of his statement, he gave briefly reading of his statement, he gave briefly his reasons for coming into the race for Mayor, and traced his public record, upon which he largely relied for his success. He had supported the employers' liability and child labor bills, and worked parnestly for their passage.

Coming to the last session of the Gencral Assembly, Colonel Anderson dwelt at some length upon his annexation measure and he explained its provisions and commended it to the people.

Alse declared that if chosen Mayor, one of his first acts would be to recommend a properly guarded enlargement of the corporate limits, so that all classes might have comfortable homes for their families. He favored a speedy consummation lies, He favored a speedy consummation of fresh, pure and clear water, and he declared for adequate police and fire protection, and for better sanitary conditions.

"If elected Mayor," he said, "I shall devote every energy of my body and mind to the advancement and prosperity of your city, and shall lose no opportu-nity to make her affractive and heautiful, and all her people prosperous and happy."

An Old-Timer.

Captain McCarthy, who was the next speaker, commenced by returning his thanks for the splendid reception accord-ed him, he having been called for and ed him, he having been called for and wildly cheered.

"I was the first to announce my canddany for Mayor," he said, "against the present incumbent of the office, and I have never medified that announcement in the slightest degree, and I am here to tell you that F thrend to fight this pattle out to be very frazzle end of the battle out to he very frazzle end of the

"You know candidates have a habit of complimenting themselves and making mild insinuations against each other. Unlike my friend, Hicks, I don't have to promise what I will do; I have already done some tilings.

"You will pardon me if I say I descrive your gratitude for being the cause of this great meeting to-night. This is the first time in thirty years that candidates for Mayor have stood before you and promised to do something if elected. My campaign of two years ago is responsible for this. It has been usual in the past for the aspirants for Mayor to say, I want the job,' and stop there."

"You have been told by three candidates here to-night that possibilities lay in the office of Mayor. Never before did they talk of the vital interests of the city. I am the ploneer. But for me you'd hear them say, 'Please give me the job.' or 'Don't scratch Hicks.'

"I have hever asked a man to vote for me. I am not seeking the place." Here Captain McCarthy briefly discussed the city's debt, and said if not properly managed this was the darkest menace to the city's future. He was the first who ever dared to speak of the ruinous management of the matter, and received in Wouldn't Let Him Stop.

Here Captain McCarthy ridiculed Messis. Anderson and Hicks for indulging respectively in high sounding phrass and poetry, and kept the crowd in a roar of laughter.

"When I speak," he said, "I keep close to business. That's what the city needs." Captain McCarthy was about to stop here, but there were loud cries of "go on" coming up from all over the hall and he proceeded.

"I have been in the City Hall a long on" coming up from all over the hall and he proceeded.

"I have been in the City Hall a long time." he said, "and I have never understood exactly what honor it was to occupy a seat in one corner of the building and listen to the chit-chat of the raging and bob-tail of the city on politics.

"The position, just as it stands now, is not such as any man should coyet. One of Captain McCarthy's predecessors and possibly both had said something about the mayorally being an honor any man might covet.

"I am not seeking such an honor," he said. "I am running for a place which has been practically vacant for eight years. I see possibilities in the position and want to try my hand. The job pays $400 less than the one I hold, "You can fill both," said some one in the audience.

"Well," was the guick reply, "if you ence.

"Well," was the quick reply, "if you will let me off with as little as the mayor does, I will fill both. They say in the City Hall that I do nothing. Now, nothing and nothing is how much?" the question threw the great audience into a spasm of applause and it was quite an interval before the speaker could proceed.

They All Stood Up.

They All Stood Up.

Here one of the most remarkably dramatic incidents occurred ever witnessed in Halvidere Hall. Capt. McCarthy had worked his hearers up to a height of enthudasm and he declared that he was almost tempted to adopt the plan of revivalists and ask those interested in the City government to stand up.

How many will stand? he shouted, and in a moment the entire audience (base and cheered and waved with the impost delight.

After declaring that he was not a polylician and never consulted one about his splendid address by declaring that he would speak as often during the canvass as opportunity presented itself.

The meeting was a complete success and from the demonstrations of approval that greeted Captain McCarthy throughout his speech it looked as if he had the crowd with him.

The latest announcement for the Common Council for Marshall Ward is Mr. Wilbur J. Griggs, whose name a year ago was familiar to aimost every person in the city. Mr. Griggs was at that time the lead of the street railway employes' organization, and piloted them through the strike. Since that time he has been employed as a salegman at the Globe Clothing Company's store, and has done well in his new vocation. Mr. Griggs is a young man of intelligence, and one whose character was never attacked in all the heat of feeling necessarily attending the strike.

Which the Two Figured.

"There is the only officer that ever defied 'Slonewall' Jackson, to my knowledge." said a well known Confederate soldier at Lee Camp hall Friday night, pointing to the portrait of General Amphrose P. Hill. "It was on the march to Harper's Perry. I was in Hill's division at the time and we were on the march which ended in the taking of Harper's Ferry. Several times General Jackson had dispatched couriers to General Hill, telling him to close up his lines. Time after time the same message from Jackson came. Finally Hill became exasperated, and sent word by the courier: 'Tell General Jackson that if he wants to command my division to come and take my sword.' The message was duly delivered, and Jackson, with that stern regard for discipline so characteristic of him, had Hill placed under arrest. General Hill was detained several hours, probably all day; I do not remember now,
"A. P. Hill, wasn't afraid of anything." member now.

"A. P. Hill wasn't afraid of anything or anybody," concluded the veteran, who is himself a man well known to the newspaper fraternity in this city and throughout the State.

Bright's Disease and Diabetes News.

Law Offices of Henley and Costello, San Francisco, April 1, 1904. To the Legal Profession of Richmond: I was a witness to the following:

San Francisco, April 1, 1994.
To the Legal Profession of Richmond:
I was a witness to the following:
About two years ago Professor Yost,
of Palo Alto, who was in an extreme conditton, due to advanced Bright's Disease, came to my office. He was attended by his physician, who was himself a victim of Diabetes. The object of the visit was to meet a prominent business man who had for months been investigating an alleged cure for Bright's Disease and Diabetes, and hear his verdict. He declared that the claims were fully proven and that the claims were fully proven and that the cure had been discovered.
Both Professor Yost and his physician at oncy adopted the treatment. Within six months both were so well along towards recovery that they considered themselves beyond danger and at this date neither Bright's Disease nor Diabetes hold any terrors for them, and the physician is successfully using the treatment in his practice.
Learning that my old law partner,
Judge R. R. Bigelow, for many years chief justice of the State of Nevada, had Bright's Disease, and that though he had had four or five of our best physicians, yet that he had had to give up practice and was in a serious condition,
I lost no time in telling him of the above. It resulted in his complete recovery and he is again back to active practice. As to the curability of chronic

"Winchester Schultze" brought up third place,
"Robin Hood," Poco Bill Johnson and Mr. Robinson tied for fourth place.
There was an exciting race of twenty-live targets between Poco Bill Johnson and J. A. Anderson. Anderson was pinched an easy winner of the race, as it was Poco Bill's first attempt at pulverizing clay saucers, but the thirteenth bird was Anderson's Waterloo and Johnson centered target after target until he had the good score of twenty chalked up to his credit. Several shooters joined the club and by the 1st of May, the membership will reach thirty active shooters.
A large crowd is expected at the opening shoot of the West End Club next Thursday, the 14th. This is an old, popular club, and has a record of the best score ever made by a team of five in the State, shooting at fifty targets each. This olub has offered $50 in gold to be shot for during the season, three-fourths of which goes to the "handleap shot" or weak shooter.

The following scores were made in the shoot yesterday at seventy-five targets: Winchester Schultze, 60; J. A. Anderson, 61; "Robinson, 58; "Medica," 62; P. J. Flippen, 35; "Poor Bill Johnson," 58; C. Coleman, 50; J. W. Brauer, Jr., 55; Dr. Stelle, 13

"I wilnessed the Japanese landing at Wel-Hai-Wel. It was excellently performed, but there was no enemy to offer resistance, the Chinese having fled. Yet it required four days to disembark 21,000 men. If the Japanese attempt to land anywhere within striking kilstance of New Chwang we can easily concentrate a force to oppose them faster than they can disembark."

The opinion now is that the Japanese will try a flanking movement from Takushan, west of Antung, at the head of the Gulf of Korea, in connection with their advance on the Yalu River, but the authorities here make no display of nervousness, manifesting the ulmost confidence in the plan of campaign marked out by General Kuropatkin.
